AWARE

FRAMED FOR FUTURE USE

One of the intriguing aspects of the Aware sofa is its iconic frame placement. Unlike traditional sofas that hide the frame beneath layers of fabric, this sofa boldly carries its frame on the outside. According to designer Rikke Frost, this design choice isn't just an aesthetic decision. This unique feature allows for easy replacement of textile parts, so when the time comes for reupholstering or disposal, the convenient disassembly process is a nod to responsible waste management.

PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

The 3-seater sofa Aware designed by Rikke Frost is both eye-catching and forward-looking. The comfortable back and side cushions are reversible, doubling their lifespan, while the frame is built to last for generations.

Iconically, the sofa carries the frame on the outside, which enables easy replacement of textile parts and convenient disassembly when the sofa has to be reupholstered or disposed of many years from now.

DESIGN

Rikke Frost

Danish designer, Rikke Frost, base her design studio on three words. Minimal, magical and mindful. The notion of "minimal" drives the intention to use the least amount of resources possible, embracing a clean and simple aesthetic. "Magical" holds a special place, allowing the design process to get creative with tactility and create experiences for users. "Mindful" emphasizes the importance of creating products that remain meaningful not just for today, but also for the times ahead. They approach each design project with careful thought, always putting the human experience first.
